CONTENTS.

PAGE

Alfred De Vigny 533
Among the Books of Seventy-one; by a Reader 97
Byron and Shelley 30
Calvary of St. Sebastian, The 483
Deceased Wife's Sister, The 116, 255, 414, 546
Falls of Teycandama, The 113
Floral Gems 346
Forest King, The 252
Fred Redestone's Escapade; or, The Romance of a Garden . . . 370
"Found!" 239
"GOODBYE, SWEETHEART!"

NOON.

Chapter III. What the Author says 1
" IV. What the Author says 6
" V. What the Author says 15
" VI. What Jemima says 19
" VII. What Jemima says 23
" VIII. What the Author says 145
" IX. What the Author says 155
" X. What Jemima says 164
" XI. What Jemima says 171
" XII. What Jemima says 287
" XIII. What the Author says 290
" XIV. What Jemima says 295
" XV. What Jemima says 298
" XVI. What the Author says 304
" XVII. What Jemima says 431
" XVIII. What Jemima says 435
" XIX. What the Author says 442

Henry Brougham and some of His Contemporaries 350
House of Mæcenas, In the 186
Hundred Years Ago, A 225
La Marquise de Pompadour, and the Age of Louis the Fifteenth . . 192

PAGE

Midsummer Day's Dream, A 50
Modern Manners 453
Mysterious Sketch, The 212
Napoleon the First 53
Narrative of an Escape from the Conflagration of Paris . . . 498
Night with the Anthological, A 463
Old-Fashionable London 84
On some Clubs, and their Ends 469
Organist of St. Peter's, The 331
OUGHT WE TO VISIT HER:
Chapter XLIII. Lord Barty and his Friends 69
„ XLIV. The Closing Scene 75
Pigeon at Hurlingham, A 207
Politeness 80
Recollections of Felix Mendelssohn and His Friends 397
Richard Steele 518
"Serius Ocius" 412
Sonnet 517
Stray Thoughts on Coming Political and Social Upheaval . . . 240
Talking Animal, The 179
To Those About to Marry 364
Welsh Horse Wedding, A 406
Wordsworth Impartially Weighed 310